

STATEMENT

These paintings were originally inspired by particle trails from bubble chambers. In science and in art, sublime process and observation change the inherent nature of the matter, the energy and the process itself. Although these works were inspired by particle events, each painting is an event in itself.